Mister Nobody is a new and fresh addition to the Nelson jazz scene. Their reworking of jazz standards combined with snappy original material is attracting strong local support.

Bandleader Brett Holland plays guitar with several local bands. He has taught music in Nelson and Australia for over ten years and is a prolific composer and songwriter. Saxophonist David Bowater has played for most of his life and currently plays in the Nelson Jazz Club Big Band. Drummer Tony Bowater is festival director, a generous patron of the arts and a prominent local businessman. The newest member of the group is bassist Ry Koleff. This is Ry's first experience as a jazz band member and he is proving to be a very solid performer.
