The Pleasure Point Sextet is a powerful and exciting group that plays a wide variety of styles, unique arrangements of hard-driving hard bop, infectious Afro-Cuban and salsa rhythms, Latin jazz, lots of originals, straight-ahead swing, soulful blues and beautiful ballads.

The group was originally formed around five years ago when California-based pianist Steve Abrams visited Wellington, hooked up with his friends there, and did several concerts at Blondini's Jazz Cafe. The group was named after a famous surfing spot in Santa Cruz, California, just down the street from O'Neill's Surf Shop headquarters.
